PUPILS at Feltonfleet School in Cobham welcomed the Mayor and Mayoress of Elmbridge to the opening of an extension to their pre-preparatory department on Thursday.

The new building includes a sports hall, library and an IT suite and past and present pupils attended the event at the school, off Byfleet Road.

The extension was added on to Calvi House, the school department which is for students aged three to seven, before they move to the main school at Feltonfleet.

Jan Preece, headmistress of Calvi House, said: "We all know that buildings aren't everything but these fantastic new facilities do support us in our original aim.

She added: "Given Calvi's big heart and fine teachers and pupils, together with the vibrant prep department that our children move on to, it is fair to say that Feltonfleet is flourishing."
