Rugby legend Rob drops in to see pupils

A WORLD rugby legend swapped the boardroom for the blackboard when he went back to school.

Former England and British Lions star Rob Andrew was at Feltonfleet School in Cobham to speak to youngsters.

Now director of elite rugby at the Rugby Football Union, Mr Andrew played 71 times for England and five times for the Lions during an illustrious 12-year career.

He watched a DVD of the 1995 World Cup quarter-final match he played against Australia, in which he scored a drop goal to clinch an historic victory over the Aussies, before speaking to pupils about his experiences in the game.
